The Introit-Psalms

FOR

SUNDAYS AND HOLY-DAYS,

AS PRESCRIBED BY THE

First Prayer-Book of Edward Sixth;

SET TO ORIGINAL CHANTS

FOR

CONGREGATIONAL USE.

By J. H. CORNELL,

ORGANIST OF S. PAUL'S CHAPEL, TRINITY PARISH, NEW YORK.

THE object of the present work is to provide a substitute for Metrical Psalmody, for congregational usage.

The Chants to which the Psalms are set were suggested by the so-called Gregorian Tones for the Introits, as contained in the Graduale. They are but eighteen in number, distributed throughout the eighty-one Introit-Psalms; their melodies are simple, and limited in compass; and when it is considered, moreover, that the pointing of the text is very clear and systematic, it will be seen that there is no reason why these Introits may not be easily learned by any congregation containing the average number of persons gifted with a musical ear,—a view which, it is confidently asserted, will only be confirmed by the experiment, honestly and fairly made, of their introduction.*

In singing the Introit, the choir alone, or the Precentor, takes the first verse, beginning with the intonation, printed in small notes† at the commencement of the Chant. The remaining verses of the Psalm are sung by the congregation and choir together, without the intonation, in a moderately brisk tempo, and full throughout (i. e. not by sides, as in ordinary Psalmody); the time being somewhat slackened towards the end of the latter half of the last verse. The first verse of the Doxology is sung, with the intonation, and somewhat less briskly, by the choir alone; the second verse by the congregation and choir, also with the intonation, and in the same tempo, slackening on the word Amen.

A few observations must be made with regard to the pointing of the Psalms. Italicised words or syllables serve as rallying-points, and are to be lengthened. It must, however, be distinctly understood that this lengthening does not always imply accent. Thus, in the cases of italicised unaccented syllables (particularly finals), and unimportant words, the lengthening should be slighter than usual, and is to be regarded only as a means of preventing a pause upon some remaining word or syllable of the recitation still less adapted for lengthening. Occasionally, with a view to avoid an undesirable break in the sense, the rallying-point is omitted: in every such case, if people must, in accordance with a natural tendency, make a pause on the very last syllable of the recitation, let it be as short as possible. It should be distinctly understood, however, that the comma, occurring near the end of the recitative, has the effect of the rallying-point: so that the following one or two syllables remaining in the recitative are to be sung rapidly, just as if they followed the regular rallying-point, printed in italics.

* These Introits have been in use in S. Paul's Chapel, N. Y., from the 1st Sunday in Advent, 1870.

† Other small notes, occasionally occurring in the chants, are for the organ only. A small note, forming the minor third of a chord in the last measure of a chant, may, at the discretion of the organist, be raised at the last repetition, so as to afford a close with a major chord.

A pause should always be made at the comma, semicolon, exclamation-point and interrogation-point, and a shorter one at this sign (v).

The occurrence of a half-note rest (—) in the recitation, indicates that the syllable next following is not to be sung, as usual, at the beginning, but to enter at the latter half, of the reciting-note. In such cases, the organ may sound the bass at the beginning of the measure.

In some Psalm-verses, the latter half contains too few syllables for the Chant. This is provided for by the omission of the second reciting-note, indicated by this sign (*).

In conclusion, the author respectfully submits this little work (which he believes to be unique, not having met with anything similar) to the favorable consideration of all who love and appreciate the stricter style of ecclesiastical music.

3. My voice shalt thou hear be- | times · = | O · = | Lord · = || early in the morning will I direct my prayer | un - to | thee · and | will · look | up · =.

9. As for me, I am like a green olive-tree | in · the | house · of | God · = || my trust is

  3. He will not | suffer · thy | foot · to be | mov - ed || and | he · that | keepeth · thee | will · not | sleep · =.
  4. Behold, | he · that | keep - eth | Is - rael || shall | nei - ther | slum · = | ber · nor | sleep · =.
  5. The Lord him - | self · = | is · thy | keep - er || the Lord is thy de - | fence · up - | on · thy | right · = | hand · =.
